Final plans, cost figures due on city hall complex

Final plans and specifications as well as final cost estimates for construction of a new Canyon civic center complex will be presented city commissioners Monday night.

Commissioners meet at 7 p.m. in the community center.

A lengthy agenda faces the commission with the plans and specifications set for consideration to close the meeting out.

Architects from HD&R of Dallas will present the final figures to the commission.

City Manager George Loudder said Friday he has not yet been told what the final cost estimate for construction of the building will be.

Previous cost estimates have indicated the facility could cost as much as $1.5 million with all related costs.

Before commissioners can contract with construction firms for building the structure, they must submit to the voters of the city an election to determine whether or not the complex should or should not be constructed.

Commissioners bound themselves to call an election when they passed a resolution at their last meeting presented in a petition signed by more than 200 local voters.

Loudder has said the vote could be called for some time in May or early June.

The final plans and specifications to be presented Monday night will be for a two-story city office building to house a fire station, police station, library and management offices as well as commission chambers. The plans will also include specifications for a new community center building.

Commissioners throughout the project have stated they want to obtain plans and specifications for both the office building and community center with an option to build one or both of the structures.

In other business on the agenda for Monday, commissioners are expected to review a preliminary plat of more than half a section of Hunsley Hills.

The city's planning and zoning commission approved the preliminary plat recently with some stipulations.

The plat is probably the largest filed for development in the city's history.

Commissioners are also to discuss a new contract with LaGrone Funeral Chapel for ambulance service in the city.

They will elect a new mayor pro-tem. H. R. Fulton Jr. is currently serving in that capacity.

The Canyon High School Eagle baseball team has been working out all week in preparation for their Tuesday trip to Dumas for a double header that will open district 1-AAA play. Here Terry Slagle, Eagle catcher, hustles a pop-up foul ball during Friday's batting practice. According to Coach Bob Sloan, the Eagles have a good chance at winning the district title.

Water bill high? Now city can aid

Canyon residents who sometimes feel their water bill is too high due to a faulty water meter can now challenge city hall and possibly win.

City Manager George Loudder said last week the city has purchased a $1500 water meter testing device which will give the city the capability of testing meters residents feel are mistaken.

The new device was demonstrated for Loudder and the press Thursday by Robert Rogers, head of the city's water and sewer department, shortly after the equipment was installed.

Loudder said a handful of the city's water customers complain each month their water bills are too high due to a defective water meter.

When such complaints are received in the future, he indicated, the city will be able to test the meter to determine whether or not it is defective.

The new testing device will also allow the city to begin a regular maintenance program on

More cuts in WTSU faculty 'possible' under tight funds

There is a "strong possiblity" some faculty members at West Texas State University will receive notices later this spring that their services will not be needed following the next academic year, according to Dr. Ray Malzahn, academic vice president.

Malzahn said final budget figures for the 1975-76 academic year have not been formalized as yet and until final figures are available the number of faculty members who will not be rehired for the '75-76 school year will not be known.

But, he said initial figures indicate the budget for that academic year will be "tight."

"It looks like it will be very difficult to replace faculty members who are leaving or retiring," he said, "and it is a strong possibility some notices will have to be given."

Malzahn said he and other administrators are to meet Monday afternoon to go over final budget estimates from Financial Vice President Virgil Henson.

Following that meeting, he said, he should have "some idea what the situation might be."

He said when final figures are available, he will meet with the various university deans to go over the budget and make decisions on faculty releases, if such releases are needed.

He said he will know whether faculty members will be affected before this term ends in early May. If notices are necessary, he said they would be given the affected faculty members by May 8 or 9.

The new tenure policy recently approved for university faculty members requires a year's notice for members who have worked at WTSU for more than two years. A faculty member in his first year at the university must be notified prior to March 1 that he will not be rehired the next fall.

Several faculty members have received notifications each spring since WTSU enrollment began a downward swing three years ago.

University enrollment went down a notch last fall and took a smaller downward move for the spring term.

Bids sought for building overpass over highway

The Texas Highway Department is seeking bids now for construction of a grade separation which will more directly link the Hunsley Hills addition to downtown Canyon.

Bids are to be opened in public session on April 23 for the project, which has been delayed several times due to various requirements.

All property needed for construction of the grade separation — an underpass — for 15th Street and U.S. 60 in north Canyon has been purchased from landowners.

Construction designs by the highway department indicate the current grade of U.S. 60 will be lowered to travel under 15th Street. Currently, traffic on 15th Street either north or south must stop twice while crossing busy U.S. 60.

The City of Canyon handled purchase of right-of-way for the construction and will foot the bill for a certain amount of curb and gutter for access roads.

Several condemnation suits were filed by the city to obtain some of the property needed for the construction.

Hearings were held recently which cleared the way for the project.

Canyon city commissioners will review the results of those condemnation proceedings at their regular session Monday night.

State highway department officials have in the past been reluctant to provide an established figure for construction costs of the grade separation. They point to inflationary trends and the high cost of energy products as incalculables in the bidding procedures.

Construction could begin within 30 days following the bid opening in two weeks. Construction could be finished next fall.

The 15th Street-U.S. 60 project is one of several planned to upgrade the U.S. 87-60 thoroughfare system in the Canyon area. Plans are also on the drawing board, although funding has not been allocated, for a grade separation at the VFW Road and U.S. 60 also north of the city.

Plans have also been laid for construction of a grade separation which would carry Hunsley Road over U.S. 87 to link up with a road extending to the east to meet Washington Street.

County commissioners are working with state highway engineers currently on construction of the road which will stretch from Washington west to provide

Fire and computer services eyed by group

Randall County commissioners will meet with commissioners from Potter County and the City of Amarillo later this month or next month to begin as a group discussions on sharing of joint services, particularly fire-fighting service and tax office computer record services.

Commissioners John Fulgenzi and Jim Fletcher met Thursday with two Amarillo city commissioners and Potter County representatives to begin talks on the sharing of joint services. Their decision was to call a meeting of all commissioners from each of the three governmental entities.

For Randall County commissioners, the procedure is virtually a repeat of discussions which took place last fall to work out a joint services agreement with the City of Canyon.

The latest round of talks has been spurred by a move by Amarillo raising the charge for fighting fires in rural Randall County areas to $840 per fire call.

County commissioners have discussed with some distaste the per-fire rate and have proposed that certain services the county provides Amarillo be based on a similar rate structure.

In particular, the commissioners have discussed charging as much as $16,000 for a computer record of motor vehicles registered in Randall County if the record is wanted by the City of Amarillo tax office.

Fulgenzi said following Thursday's session that discussion centered around the fire call fees charged by Amarillo and the services, such as the motor vehicle roll, which Amarillo has in the past been receiving at no charge.

He said Amarillo commissioners stuck by their $840 fire charge fee and pointed to a recent cost analysis prepared by Amarillo and Potter County officials of the fire service in Amarillo.

Fulgenzi said the cost analysis produced figures indicating each fire cost the city about $1100.

And, he said he and Fletcher were equally reluctant to come down on the price for the motor vehicle registration roll wanted by Amarillo.

While Fulgenzi said the meeting was amiable, he said he and Fletcher also stuck by the contention that the majority of Randall County's taxpayers — those living within the city limits of Amarillo — are being taxed twice for fire service when a fee of $840

(See GROUP, page 6)

Voters now at high point

For the first time in Randall County history, voter registrations in the county topped the 30,000 mark.

County Clerk LeRoy Hutton said a computer print-out from the final voter registration tally before the May primary showed a total of 30,171 voters registered.

Only 2928 of those registered voters are under the age of 21.

The 30,000 total is about 2000 up from the 1972 total of 28,192 and is well up from the 1964 voter registration total of 14,000.

GOP commissioner candidates eye issues

(Editor's note: The following is another in a series of interview articles to be published by The News periodically before the May primary elections. The interviews are with candidates in contested races in the primaries.)

Two of the three Republican candidates for the county commission seat to be vacated by incumbent Bill Butler indicated through interviews last week they are not poles apart on the many issues which face county government.

John McCann and James F. Rittenberry, vying along with Dee Griffin Sr., for the GOP primary nod to seek Butler's seat in the November general election, did differ, however, on some issues.

Griffin refused to be interviewed by The News, terming the paper's approach to the interviews "unfair" to the candidates.

"I refuse your request because I do not feel it is fair for you to publically announce the ideas and feelings of the Republican candidates, and then, at a later date when the Democratic candidate has been thoroughly versed as to his opponent's feelings and ideas, be allowed to expound on his thinking and solutions," Griffin said in a written statement. "I will be happy to express my opinions and possible solutions to specific questions regarding Randall County problems if you will require all Randall County commissioner candidates (Republican and Democrat) to respond at the same time and no candidate will be shown favoritism."

Griffin said he had discussed the situation with "several of my constituents and they too feel this action would be wrong."

McCann and Rittenberry had no such qualms about the interviews and expressed their opinions on a wide variety of issues.

Budget Problems

One major issue currently facing county commissioners is money. For several years commissioners have been dipping into surplus funds accrued through the 1960s to make up a deficit in revenues and to meet expenditures in county budgets.

Commissioners are also facing problems in terms of valuations set for property in the county.

Candidate McCann said he believes a major inequity in the current county financing system is the giving of tax breaks to rural farm owners.

McCann said rural farmers are given a large break on their taxes which the city dweller does not get.

"That's not right, it's not equitable," he said. "I think all should pay equally."

He said he believes a re-evaluation of all property in the county is in order. He said he favors a budgeting procedure which would call for justification of all expenditures on an annual basis.

Candidate Rittenberry said he too favors an annual budget process which justifies all expenditures. But, he said it would be acceptable practice to use the surplus money accrued by the county to defray expenditures when revenues are not enough to cover expenditures.

Rittenberry said now is the wrong time to begin a re-evaluation effort in the county due to spiraling inflation.

All property, he said, would be valued on an inflated scheme if re-evaluation is pursued now.

Road Policy

Another issue facing county commissioners is the enforcing of a new county road maintenance policy which calls for developers to foot the bill for streets in their developments.

McCann said he favors the road policy, citing the advantages of orderly growth and the problems with land speculators.

He said other county residents will eventually have to pay for maintenance of development roads and the roads should be constructed to last.

McCann said the current Randall County system of a centralized road maintenance department under Supt. Joe West should be an economical and efficient system if run properly.

Rittenberry said he, too, favors the new county road policy.

Noting that many developments virtually demand city-type streets, he said county residents living within a city should not be taxed to pay for city streets in rural areas.

He said the county should not have the job of maintaining streets in subdivisions.

Rittenberry said he favors the centralized road superintendent plan under which the county maintains roads.

Home Rule

Texas legislators sitting as delegates to the constitutional convention in Austin have already approved a home rule provision to be given the voters for their approval. The provision states that voters of a particular county may restructure their county government and may run it by charter.

"I think the people in the county should have that option of the type government they want," McCann said.

Rittenberry said there could be some advantages to home rule including adoption of a county manager form of county government.

But, he said he doesn't feel such a plan would save any taxpayer money.

Law-making Power

Along with a home rule provision, convention delegates have also approved an optional plan for county voters to give their county governments the power to pass ordinances.

McCann said he would favor

Our World

Christ Is Risen!

By ANN BROWN

Christ is Risen!

Easter does not deny the reality of death. But it does offer proof that God is able to create new life beyond death.

The proof lies in the symbolic example God has already provided in the resurrection of Jesus Christ.

Did Jesus really rise from the dead? Or is the Easter story merely a fantastic myth invented by followers who could not reconcile themselves to the death of their leader?

Obviously, no one after nearly 20 centuries can make categorical declarations about the facts of an event that is alleged to have happened so long ago.

What can be stated, however, as an abundantly documented historical fact is that there were witnesses — not 2 or 3 or a dozen, but several hundred — who vowed they had seen and talked with Jesus after His resurrection from the dead.

And those witnesses were not hallucinating mystics, but ordinary farmers and fishermen, and friends of the deceased. They were as convinced as any 20th century American that dead people stay dead. And they were just as surprised as we would be to encounter an exception to the rule.

Jesus had explained to His followers earlier that He would die, but that He would rise again, and had asked them to meet Him in Galilee. The story was so incredible they brushed it aside and forgot all about it.

But after the Resurrection, they were so certain of its reality that many of them readily laid down their lives rather than deny that Jesus had come back from the dead.

A false report could easily persist for 40 days. But the organization that was founded on the Risen Christ has lasted more than 19 centuries, produced generations of the race's finest characters, and grown to more than 1 billion members.

There are but two choices to make relative to the Resurrection: Any person who believes Jesus COULD have risen from the dead will find ample historical evidence to justify his believing He DID rise.

There will probably never be enough evidence, however, to convince a person who has already decided it could not be true.

Each is free to make his own choice — and take the consequences.

Why is it so difficult to believe in life after death? Earthly life is so brief. Does it seem logical that all the beauty, charm, and personality with which the human race has been endowed could be destroyed forever?

The Apostle Paul said he would be of all men most miserable if he had to believe there was no resurrection (I Cor. 15:19).

Christ is God. God is love. Can a tomb hold love? Why shouldn't He come out? And because He lives, He promised that all His followers should live also (John 11:25-26).

How did the risen Christ make eternal life possible?

An old preacher who was reared on the Texas Plains used the backfire as an illustration: The Indians did not have plows to cut fire guards around them as the white men did to protect their homes from the scourge of the prairie — fire.

The Indians saved their wigwams from the blaze by setting fire to the dry grass immediately adjoining their settlements, when the wind was not blowing. When a wide circle had burned, they put out the fire.

"The fire cannot come," cried the old preacher, "where the fire has already been."

So Easter calls us to the Cross of Christ. Judgment has already fallen there, and can never come again.

He who takes his stand at the foot of the cross is safe from judgment and eternal death. He can never come into condemnation because he is in God's safety zone.

The story is told that during the tenure of Calvin Coolidge when the iconoclasts began their campaign to discredit all our American heroes, they asked the President to give his opinion of the "Discredit Washington" movement.

Silent Cal lifted his eyes briefly to the Washington Monument towering 555 feet into the air. Then with his usual taciturnity he replied, "I see the Monument is still there."

When doubters scoff at the Resurrection story, the faithful can point out that the empty tomb is still there.

Wind, Dust and Politics-- A Study

By CARROLL WILSON

H. M. Baggarly, the Country Editor from Tulia, has been wrong all these years.

A political pundit of some national reputation, Baggarly has been examining Panhandle politics for a number of years and his pontifications amount to making a pretty complicated picture out of it.

Researchers in political science have joined with physicists at a regional university to complete a study which indicates politics can be boiled down to one common denominator — the wind.

Dr. Mybranze Brieze revealed a portion of the study to his students last week.

"Dere iss a direct correlation between de vind and de political mindset of de population of de Panhandle and de political mindset of dose from de Panhandle vot seek political office," the professor said.

Obviously, the professor continued, candidates for political office come from the population itself and are therefore subject to the same kinds of pressures, political or otherwise, which affect the regional population.

Dr. Brieze's contention is that the wind is a grass-roots motivator of political thinking in the Panhandle.

"Ve all know," he says, "dat people who are close to de earth, who are at de grassroots, are politically conservative.

"How much closer to de earth can you be dan vhen you are standing in the middle of a Panhandle dust storm? Ask any wheat farmer in de county dis year vot hoppened to his grassroots. Dey been flying tru de air wit de vind and dust, dot's vot!"

Turning to other psychological factors in his study, Dr. Brieze cited the "spring madness" syndrome initially manifested many years ago in the Panhandle.

"Spring madness," he explained, is the nomenclature given a particular psychological problem early Panhandle residents faced during the spring months.

"De vind vistling tru de prairie grasses and de cracks in sod or log cabins, and de dust which vas a constant companion of de vind produced a vexatious frustration particularly in vomen in dose days, a frustration which caused dem to do strange things," he said.

Dr. Brieze contends that "spring madness" is still with us in the Panhandle as the winds and dust whistle through ill-fitting car and house windows and as the trees writhe under the wind's assault.

"Vot other than 'spring madness' could cause de virtually unsolicited, unvanted political activity of every spring here?" the professor asked his students.

Why else, he asked, would Ben Bynum, a state representative seeking re-election commit political suicide by telling his constituents that if they won't raise his pay he'll just sulk in his corner for a good portion of the year?

Even more basic a question, he said, is why each spring politicians of every shape and size begin a frenzy of activity for political office.

"Like de lemmings, vot?" said the professor.

The politics of the Panhandle contains elements of the wind, Dr. Brieze's study shows.

"Congressman Bob Price blows into de district intermittently from de southeast during de spring," Brieze said. "It is interesting to note dat he blows in only ven de spring vinds are blowing. Ven all is calm here, he is in Vashington or Sout America."

A footnote to Brieze's study allows as how Price's rhetoric bears a strong similarity to the wind.

"He brushes off de dust from his old long-vinded speeches each spring, speeches vich like de vind are full of de sound and de fury," the note notes.

Jack Hightower, the professor pointed out, provides proof positive for the study's contention. Hightower has adopted the windmill as his campaign symbol.

Some politicians are more like a strong gust rather than a steady blow, Brieze says.

"Particularly politicians running for state-vide office manifest dis tendency," Brieze notes. "Sissy Farenthold vill visit Canyon next veek for a virlvind tour and like a cloud of dust she vill evaporate into de political atmosphere after spending only 30 minutes here. A small gust, but a gust dust de same."

A major point in Brieze's study is the similarity of the wind and speeches made by politicians.

"Political rhetoric contains only particles of fact or substance, just as de vind contains particles of dust," he says. "It is interesting to note dat unlike de vind, which when moving at high volocity could uproot trees or move small buildings, de rhetoric uproots or moves very little."

Dr. Brieze concludes his study with a note of pessimism concerning the reaction of Panhandle residents to politics.

"Dis reaction to politics is much akin to deir reaction to de vind.

"It makes dem nervous, it frustrates dem and it gives dem rhetoric, which like de dust, dey choose to sveep under de carpet or vash from deir hands."

Eight Canyon Thin clads To Be In Regional Meet

Eight Canyon High School tracksters will represent the local school in six events at the regional track meet in Odessa April 19-20.

Canyon placed second in the district track meet as Levelland captured the district title.

Ron Mills, track coach, was pleased with the showing that his team made during the past year. He said that this had been a good team to work with. His only upset was concerning the missed hand off on the 440 sprint relay. The baton was dropped and the relay team disqualified. According to Mills, if the baton had not been dropped there would have been only two points separating the Canyon and Levelland teams in team totals. Canyon had a 10 yard lead when the baton was dropped on the second hand off.

Representing Canyon in the 100 yard dash at the regional meet will be David Anderson, senior student who won the district dash competition with a time of 10 seconds flat. Anderson and junior Kevin Raef will enter the 220 yard dash. Anderson's best time in the 220 dash is 22.4 seconds. He did not achieve this time at the district meet because of the strong wind.

In the field events, Scott Wilson, senior, and Gary LaGrone, junior, placed second and third respectively in the district pole vault. They were in a three way tie for first place with a vault of 13 feet 6 inches. They were named second and third on the basis of fewer misses.

Senior Wayne Pitt placed first in the district long jump with a jump of 20 feet 1 inch. He was followed by junior Adrian Foil with a jump of 19 feet and 11½ inches. Mills said that Pitt was capable of jumping 22 feet.

In the discus, senior Bob Counseller placed second in district competition.

Gary Bednorz placed first in the high jump for the third consecutive year. He set a new school and district record with a jump of 6 feet 5 inches. Bednorz is a senior.

Mills said "Levelland has a strong track team. Our district will be better represented this year than it has been in years past."

Of the 35 thin clads this year only seven will graduate at the end of the year. Of the seven seniors all but two qualified for the regional meet.

Promising talent will be returning next year. Mills said that he has eight sophomores and three juniors who did not place in the district competition that will be hot prospects for the coming season.

Sophomore Lyndon Brazile shows promise in the 100 yard dash and the 440 yard dash. He has run a 10 seconds flat 100 and has a 51.8 seconds time in the 440.

Pole vaulter Craig Johnson, also a sophomore, has gone over 13 feet three different times during the season. Stan Prichard has a 15.6 seconds time in the high hurdles. Prichard is also a sophomore.

Other sophomore hopefuls for next season are Craig Lawless who has run a 4:49 mile, Collin Weaver who has put the shot 44 feet 6 inches, Mark Hanson who has put the shot 44 feet and Wayne Robinson who has thrown the discus 132 feet.

Rusty Holiday, junior thin clad, is a hopeful for next season in the discus throw. He reached the 146 feet 6 inch mark during the past season. Kelly Forehand who has put the shot 46 feet is also a junior hopeful. Ron Mills, junior student and son of Coach Mills, has a 2:06 time in the 880 yard run.

School Board To Eye Plans

Possible plans for future school building needs will be discussed by members of the Canyon School Board Tuesday night.

The board meets at the Canyon High School.

Plans will also be discussed for preparation of the 1974-75 budget.

Board members heard representatives of two major developing firms at their meeting two weeks ago. The representatives told of plans to build and sell homes in the Hunsley Hills Addition and just south of Amarillo.

One developer predicted Canyon would be a city of 15,000 population in five years.

Letters to the Editor

Thanks For Story

Dear Carroll:

Just a note to thank you for the fine story you did on my first year as president of West Texas State University. You are most kind.

I hope you will not mind if I point out that we are not the only institution of higher education in the Panhandle. If we assume that Lubbock and the institutions located there are not technically in the Panhandle, there still are some fine institutions in addition to WTSU which are, including Wayland Baptist College, Amarillo College, Clarendon College and Frank Phillips College. We are working to strengthen our relations with these institutions, and I have been delighted with the progress in this direction. Thus, we at WTSU have some fine colleagues in higher education here in the Panhandle.

Let me take this opportunity to thank all of you at the Canyon News for the superb coverage you have given West Texas State University this year. You have done so much for us, and we are grateful.

Sincerely,
Lloyd I. Watkins
President

Good Reporting

Gentlemen:

A copy of your report of my talk to a group of economic students at West Texas State University has just reached me. I would like to congratulate the reporter upon his accuracy of reporting, especially since he did not have benefit of my notes.

There was only one error and that had to do with estimated dollar requirements over the next decade to achieve maximum development of oil resources. This is reported to be 220 - 250 billion dollars. I used the figure of 250 billion dollars.

Mr. McKenna, who accompanied me to the meeting, and I were both very favorably impressed with the interest and attitude evidenced by the students in the short question and answer session. It seemed apparent that this economic department is interested in teaching the good of the free enterprise system which is so essential to the continued well being of our great country.

Please express my appreciation to your reporter who covered the talk for his overall accuracy in reporting the subject.

Sincerely,
R. S. Phillips

We're Prudes, Too

Dear Editor,

Praise the Lord for your editorial in Sunday's (April 7) paper. Although we are in complete agreement about the poor placement of nudie magazines, we believe there is NO proper place for material such as this in our drug and grocery stores. This kind of trashy material is helping our country become morally degenerate.

We are praying not only for the store owners to have a change of heart, but also for the people who delight in reading such material.

Incidentally, there is one grocery store that has a bookstand of inspirational literature for us "prudes" who are interested in spiritual growth.

Sincerely,

More On Nudies

Dear Mr. Wilson,

Thank you for the stand you made on the adult magazines found in our drug and grocery stores.

I, myself, have been at a loss of words to explain to my children why such pictures appear on the covers of these magazines.

Personally, I would like to see them removed completely. I can keep my children out of adult movies. Should I forbid them to visit the local drug or grocery store?

I notice that Congress has declared April 30 as a day of fasting and prayer to ask God to forgive us for our sins. Can we go to our knees to ask forgiveness and continue to allow this type of literature to be placed within not only sight, but reach, of our children and youth?

Can we continue to expect God's blessings on our families and country when even we who call ourselves Christians refuse to take action against what we know to be wrong?

Sincerely,
Karen Sheffy

Theology Class Cancels Meeting

The Thursday afternoon class in Biblical Theology which is taught by Rev. Baldwin J. Stribling will not be conducted this week due to the absence of the instructor.

The group, however, met last Thursday and will hold the regular meeting on April 25.

Home Fires To Be Eyed By Census

How prevalent are fires in the home and what is their cost financially and in injuries to household members?

A survey in this area will help to answer these questions. Information on the incidence of fires in the home and their cost will be collected here next week from a sample of households.

The questions are in addition to the usual ones asked in the monthly survey on employment and unemployment conducted by the Census Bureau for the U.S. Department of Labor.

Results of this survey provide a continuing measure of the economic health of the Nation. The February survey showed that 5.2 per cent of the Nation's civilian labor force was unemployed. This was the same rate as in January but well above the 4.6 per cent in October 1973 when joblessness reached its lowest point in 3½ years. The number of employed persons, 85.8 million, was the same as in January and slightly above the level of October 1973.

The households in this area taking part in the survey are among 50,000 across the Nation scientifically selected to represent a cross section of all households.

All information provided the Census Bureau is confidential by law and can be published only as statistical totals.

"Conservationist of the Year" award was presented at the weekly meeting of the Canyon Noon Lions Club Wednesday, April 10. Gilbert Irlbeck was presented the award by Ken Thompson, president of the club. Irlbeck was named "Conservationist of the Year" by the Palo Duro Soil and Water Conservation District.

New Approach To Music At Rex Reeves

By JIM ROGERS

Music lessons with a new twist seems to be the best way to describe the program Mrs. Donna Wilson, intermediate music teacher at Rex Reeves Elementary School, has found to teach the history and form of music.

Mrs. Wilson said that it all started with a mature sixth grade class that wanted a change. They wanted to study "their kind of music." The old classics were not what they considered "their kind."

Members of the class made out a questionnaire and mailed it to the various rock groups that they liked. Only one replied. The one thing that stood out in the mind of the class members was the answer given by Credence Clear Water to the question "What is the most difficult thing about the rock music world?" Their answer was that it is hard to find honesty.

Mrs. Wilson found a textbook, "What is Rock" by Elwood Jay Johnson, published by Schmitt, Hall and McCreary Co., that would bring together what she wanted to teach the students and "their kind of music." The textbook gives the history of various types of music. Students have searched out the beginning of jazz and rhythms brought to America.

The students vocabulary of music terms is being built as old modes are being tied to the new.

One of the difficulties in using rock music is the content of the words in songs. According to Mrs. Wilson, it is difficult to explain to students why some songs cannot be used.

She recalls an incident with the first class that used this new approach. At the end of the year the students were to present a program to their parents and wanted to use some of the rock songs. Students voted on the songs they wanted to use. One of the songs receiving the most votes was "Dead on Arrival." Mrs. Wilson said that she knew the best way to not have the song sung would be to say nothing against the song.

Soon students began coming to her and asking if they were really going to sing that song. Just a few days before the concert, one little girl came to Mrs. Wilson with tears in her eyes. She said she did not want to sing that song before her parents. The class voted again and decided not to sing the song.

One of the songs that the group wants to sing is "House of the Rising Sun." Mrs. Wilson asked "How do you tell sixth graders that it is not a nice song?"

Mrs. Wilson said that it was not difficult to get any of the latest songs for the students to hear. She said all that had to be done was ask if anyone of the students had the record. Not once have the students failed to have it.

During a series of lessons in science dealing with drugs, the music classes studied Acid Rock. Students learned of the odd affects of the music on the performers. They listened to performances of acid rock either on tape or records where the performers even smashed their instruments as they got into the sound.

Mrs. Wilson stated that the students began to watch for things in the music and lives of rock performers. She said that she wished parents would be more interested in what their children listened to in the music field.

There is a good side to this type of study. Students are able to relate to the new songs that can be used in the classroom.

This past year, Mrs. Wilson has had two young men as student teachers. As a project, they made a tape with various examples of the types of music both old and new. Mrs. Wilson is able to play the tape to give students an idea of the sound that she is referring to as she teaches.

Students who would otherwise be bored with the study of music find this new approach refreshingly interesting.

High School Press Convention Set At WTSU

The Fortieth Annual Convention of the Panhandle High School Press Association is to meet April 18, at West Texas State University. Twenty-four Canyon High School journalism students will attend the convention.

PHSPA, organized in 1934, is composed of junior and senior high schools of the West Texas and Eastern New Mexico regions. Schools which publish a yearbook or a newspaper of any kind are eligible for membership in PHSPA.

According to Bill R. Lee, director of the journalism department at WTSU, approximately 350 students from the various schools attend the convention each year. Because of the gasoline shortage, Lee is not sure how many schools will be represented this year.

Participants in the convention will be welcomed to the WTSU campus by Dr. Lloyd Watkins, university president.

The keynote address will be delivered by Ms. Carolene English of Burges High School in El Paso. She will speak on "First Amendment Application for the High School Press." She has just completed research on the freedom of the high school press.

Following the address the students will be divided into four groups to discuss problems they have encountered relating to freedom in their school publications.

In the afternoon, students will be divided into three sections: yearbook, photography and newspaper. Norman Dowdy, Taylor Publishing Co. and Roger Pamperin, American Yearbook Co., will address the yearbook section. Bob Vincent, Taylor Publishing Co., will speak to the photography group. The newspaper section will be divided into sports, editorial page, columns and news writing. Panel discussions will be led by various schools represented at the meeting.

During the meeting, new officers for the 1974-1975 year will be elected. Chris Moreland of Canyon High School is presently serving as treasurer for the group. Randy Breitling, from Canyon High School, will be the candidate for treasurer this year.

There will also be individual contests in Sports Story, News Story, Feature Story, Editorial, General Column, Sports Column, News Photograph and Yearbook Photography. Entries in this contest were sent in prior to March 15.

"The Outstanding High School Journalist in the Panhandle" will be honored by the awarding of the Dorinda E. Bond trophy.

Community Education To Open Class

The first class of the Community Education Program will open April 18 at Gene Howe School at 7 p.m. The Community Education Program is planned to serve as an integral part of the public school system. According to Ken Hart, director of the program, this is another step of Canyon Independent School District in serving the needs of the community.

This first course, to be taught by Mrs. Charlotte Brantley, will be Oil Painting-Acrylic Painting. This course will be an elementary class in basic techniques of either acrylic or oil painting. Acrylic paints are recommended for beginners as they are a little easier to manage, but oil can be taught at the same time as the two are similar.

Students will furnish all their materials. A list will be given the students at the first session so that they may purchase any items they do not have before the second meeting.

Students are asked to bring a drawing pencil, medium soft, and a sketch pad to the first meeting. The school will furnish the facilities including easels.

Cost of the eight week course is $12 per person. The class is open to anyone 16 years of age and older. The class will meet for three hours each evening.

Small Town Atmosphere And Schools Are Canyon's Top Assets

By JIM ROGERS

Why do people move to Canyon? According to the opinion of eight new Canyon residents, the small town atmosphere and the public school system along with WTSU are the drawing cards.

Canyon's growth is ranging from regional residents choosing Canyon over other communities to out-of-staters who are coming to this area because of new jobs, transfers or just because they like it.

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Bass and their seven children are new residents in Canyon. They came to Canyon from Indianapolis, Ind., where he was the director of the Indiana State Fish and Wild Life Department. He is now with the Department of Reclamation in Amarillo.

The Bass family had traveled back and forth from their Indiana home to her parents home in Arizona. During their travels they had camped several times in Palo Duro Canyon. According to Mrs. Bass, they liked Canyon because of its size and location.

The fact that Canyon is a college town was also influential in their choice. Their eldest child, who is finishing high school in Indiana this year, has already made application to WTSU for the fall semester. The other six Bass children range from the 4th through the 12th grades. Mrs. Bass said, "They think school is great." According to Mrs. Bass, Canyon High School has as many students in the whole school as the 9th grade class had in the school the children attended in Indiana.

Mrs. Bass stated that the family was surprised by the friendliness of the people of Canyon. She said that it seemed the people would go out of their way to speak.

Also enjoying the small town atmosphere of Canyon are Mr. and Mrs. Paul Hirsburnner. He is a milk inspector with the State Health Department. Prior to coming to Texas he was with the Pet Milk Co. in Wisconsin. Mrs. Hirsburnner said that she liked the "not too big city feel of it" as she spoke concerning the size of Canyon.

The one thing Mrs. Hirsburnner said she would have to get used to is the wind.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Simmons, owners of the new Frame Shop in Canyon, moved to Canyon for two reasons. One reason is that Mrs. Simmons' parents live in Canyon. The second reason is that Canyon would be a central location for business dealings in the Panhandle, New Mexico and Oklahoma area.

Mrs. Jerry Bridwell, who had lived in Houston 5½ years, stated that she and her husband were glad to be out of the big city when asked why they had moved to Canyon. They were both reared in the West Texas region at Sudan.

Truman Mabry said that it was just a time to change and he and his wife wanted to live closer to their daughter so they moved to Canyon. He stated that he was impressed by the friendliness of the people in this area. Mr. and Mrs. Mabry had previously lived in Childress County.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Piehl moved from Amarillo to Canyon because they like the Canyon School District. Both Mr. and Mrs. Piehl have attended WTSU.

Proper Fertilizing Knowledge Important

Homeowners and growers of lawns, trees, shrubs, and flowers are discovering now what farmers discovered several months ago — that fertilizer is scarce and about double in price from last year.

Spring lawn fertilizing time is here and homeowners are searching for their favorite analysis and brand of fertilizer only to find greatly increased prices, their desired brand is not stocked, or that strange and unknown kinds of fertilizers are on display.

John Brazzil, Randall County Extension Agent, says that lawn growers need to become smart shoppers and read the label just as food shoppers have learned to do. Brazzil has listed some facts about chemical fertilizer for lawns, trees, and shrubs for this area.

1. The soils in Randall County are basically fertile and good lawns can be grown without fertilizer. Fertilizer will not help a poor, weedy, thin, mismanaged lawn but will improve a lawn that is properly watered, mowed, and managed where the grass species is adapted to this area.

2. Nitrogen is the principal fertilizer needed for lawns.

3. The soils in Randall County contain high levels of potash. Plants, including lawns grown on soils in Randall County, will not be benefited by fertilizer containing potash and yet this element is included in all so called "complete" chemical fertilizers and does increase the cost when purchased.

4. Phosphorous, another one of the big three in "complete" lawn fertilizers, has little or no effect on lawn grass color or vigor. Less than half of the soils in Randall County will need fertilizers containing this element. It does promote fruiting and seed set on plants, a characteristic not needed in lawn grasses.

5. Fertilizers containing herbicides (weed killers) and insecticides (bug killers) should be purchased and used with extreme caution. Many good trees and shrubs have been killed when herbicide impregnated fertilizers were used where the roots from trees and shrubs were present. Continued use of low levels of insecticides incorporated in fertilizers have caused some soil insects such as grub worms to become immune to insecticides.

6. Trace elements such as boron, copper, manganese, magnesium, and zinc are in ample supply in Randall County soils. Iron deficiency and occasionally zinc deficiency will be present but soil applications of these elements are not effective in our high lime soils. Foliar sprays can be used to correct these deficiencies but these materials are not part of routine fertilizing.

7. State laws require that the three major elements of fertilizers — nitrogen, phosphorous, and potash — must be stated in percentages on every bag of fertilizer sold, and that the total of these three elements must be at least 20 per cent. Manures, peat moss, and other organic forms of fertilizer will not have chemical analysis stated since their value is based on soil conditioning, water retention, etc. and not strictly on chemical content.

Oven Sandwiches Help Time Worries

Income tax time need not be a hassle this weekend as the deadline approaches for completing the numerous forms and finally applying the signature before the filing postmark is stamped.

While Dad is busy at the adding machine or calculator, and Mom is equally busy hunting up last minute deductions, the evening meal or midnight snack for the family can be wafting its own special aroma from the oven.

A tasty supper including pizza burgers, a five-cup salad, and a prepared-ahead dip for fresh vegetables can be served along with a vitamin filled punch for the evening meal. Then off to their own fun for the children with their Parmesan Popcorn to munch and additional cups of punch.

Recipes for this meal have been selected by Miss Brenda Bratton, home economics instructor at Canyon Junior High School. Miss Bratton earned the BS degree in home economics from Texas Technological University in Lubbock and has been teaching here for the past year.

In addition to the foregoing mentioned recipes, Miss Bratton selected a recipe for Sunday Evening Supper Sandwiches to share with our readers. The supper sandwiches may be prepared ahead and frozen to pop into the oven at the last minute. This recipe is also a good way to use leftover cooked ham at any time.

giving county commissioners either ordinance-making power or the power to zone.

"I don't want to see it all-powerful, but in some instances it's pretty well necessary," he said.

He said ordinance-making power or zoning power would give commissioners the ability to control growth between Amarillo and Canyon.

Rittenberry said "enough people are making ordinances now.

"I don't see any reason for them to make ordinances."

Joining Counties

For many years, talk has centered at times on the possibility of combining Potter and Randall Counties into a large county.

McCann questioned whether there would be any saving to taxpayers by the combination of the counties. He noted that personnel would probably not be reduced and many records would have to be altered to reflect the change.

He cited the feeling by some that county government should be closer to the people and noted that a large county with a handful of commissioners would, in effect, move the government further away from the people.

Rittenberry said he'd favor allowing the citizens of both counties to vote on the issue after the pros and cons are made public.

But, he said he doesn't feel such a combination would effect any savings for taxpayers.

Cooperation

An issue which currently has commissioners embroiled in discussions with officials from Amarillo and Potter County is joint service sharing. Fire service for rural areas of the county has been a particular problem in the past.

McCann said he feels the four governmental agencies in the two-county area must work together to solve mutual problems.

Concerning the fire service fee charged by the City of Amarillo, he said the county might make provisions for new developments to provide their own fire service and facilities.

Rittenberry said the four governmental entities officials should focus on the public good in discussions concerning shared services and should remember that the taxpayer in many areas pays for overlapping services.

Both Rittenberry and McCann said discussions should be held to work out the problems.

Salaries

County commissioners currently draw about $7000 per year in salary and car allowance.

McCann said he has not done enough research to assure himself the salaries and allowances drawn by commissioners can be justified.

He said he feels the salary is sufficient.

Rittenberry said he is not sure how much work is involved in being a county commissioner and therefore is not sure, either, whether the salaries are justified.

Convicted Rapist Charged With Wednesday Nite Rape

A Palisades man convicted of statutory rape in 1969 remained in Randall County jail this weekend facing new charges of assault with intent to rape in connection with the assault of a 19-year-old South Amarillo woman on Wednesday.

Jerry Lee Williams, 34, of the Palisades, was arrested by officers Wednesday and appeared before Justice of the Peace W. A. "Bill" Wilson who set bond at $10,000.

Williams is also charged with assault with intent to rape for a different incident alleged to have occurred last week in Potter County.

Dist. Atty. George Dowlen said a South Amarillo woman told officers she was taken to dinner Wednesday by her assailant who then followed her to her home where she was attacked. The attack was ended by a telephone ring.

Williams was convicted by a 47th district court jury of statutory rape in 1969 in connection with the rape of a 14-year-old girl.

"Judge E. E. "Gene" Jordan initially set punishment on the conviction at seven years in the state penitentiary, but later probated the sentence to seven years on probation.

Dowlen said Williams' probation was ended about two years ago after he had served part of the sentence.

is charged per fire in the rural areas.

"The biggest problem is communication," Fulgenzi said. "We just need to try to sit down together and try to think this thing out."

He said he favors having all commissioners from the three governmental bodies come together to discuss the issues and try to come up with equitable solutions to the problems.

water meters, he said.

While the revenue produced directly by the testing instrument will not offset its cost for a few years, he said, the maintenance program and the ability to provide customers with an answer to their complaints will be more than worth the cost.

Rogers said he will begin a schedule of testing and maintenance soon which eventually will result in testing and maintenance of every one of the more than 2500 water meters in the city.

He said there are many old meters in the city which need to be tested for accuracy.

The committee responsible for the new church banner are Miss Claudia Neelley, in charge of design; Jo Cook, who was responsible for the gold embroidery outlining of the wording; and Eileen Kent and Mary Harrison, who participated in assembly of the oversize banner which features a gold and blue antique velvet background with lettering and figure of white felt.

Board Hears Green's Plans For New Show

New officers were elected and Playwright Paul Green gave a brief preview of a new production planned for the Texas Panhandle Heritage Foundation during the organization's annual meeting held Wednesday in Amarillo.

A. W. Lair and Jerry LaGrone of Canyon were elected to two-year posts on the foundation board. Lair will be third vice president and LaGrone will be treasurer.

Dr Lloyd I. Watkins, president of West Texas State University, and Keith Winter, director of development at WTSU, were named ex-officio board members for 1974.

Nine Canyon residents were elected for two-year terms on the board.. They are Dr. Leta Boswell, Mrs. Irby Carruth, Dr. James P. Cornette, Ruth Cross, Dr. Frank W. Daugherty, Dr. Ishmael Hill, A. W. Lair, Mrs. Emil Olson and Bernard Warren.

Green, author of "TEXAS," the musical production staged annually during the summer months in Palo Duro Canyon, gave a brief description of the sound and light show he is writing for the foundation for use in the Pioneer Amphitheatre, home of "TEXAS," when the summer production is not playing and on special occasions.

A seven-minute film on "TEXAS" was also premiered for the foundation membership. Amarillo photographer Bill Rhew produced the film, which will soon be available for use on television and for clubs.

This year's season of "TEXAS" runs June 19 through Aug. 24 in the canyon. The production can be seen nightly except Sundays.

Price Due For Speech At WTSU

U. S. Rep. Bob Price will be in Canyon Thursday to address students at West Texas State University.

Price, who is running for re-election on the GOP ticket in November, will address students at 9:30 a.m. Thursday on the campus and will speak to political science students at 11 a.m.

Three Democratic contenders seek the voter bid to run against Price in November. Dr. Louis A. Finney, Ray Ruffin and Jack Hightower are vying in the May primary for the Demo standard.

U.S. Defense Topic Of Talks For Action Group

America's current defense posture will be the topic of discussion Thursday night when the Canyon Political Action Group meets in regular session.

Dr. K. C. Kay, director of the center of business and education at Lubbock Christian College, and Capt. John Vandale of Canyon will present the program.

Dr. John Kahler, West Texas State University history professor, will be moderator for the program.

The meeting will be at the Yum Yum Tree Restaurant in Canyon. Those interested in dining with the club should arrive at 6:30 p.m. and the program will begin at 7:15 p.m.

Youth Revival Ending Today

Final service for a youth revival being conducted at Grace Baptist Church in Canyon will begin at 11 a.m. today following the regular morning class hour at 10 o'clock.

Ron Stidham, a missionary from Alabama, will give the sermon. Stidham opened the revival services at the church Wednesday evening with nightly sermons being conducted in an effort to raise financial support for his service as a missionary representing the faith in Australia later this summer, according to the local pastor, Rev. Richard Korsmo.

Following the morning revival service, Rev. Korsmo urged all members and other guests to plan attending the communion services this evening.

Sunrise Offering Aids Association

The Canyon Pastor's Association has several action projects for community betterment and receives a major part of their financial support for these projects from the free-will offering received annually at the Easter Sunrise services held in Palo Duro Canyon.

Benevolent help for the needy has been the major part of the expenditures for the association in the past, however, this coming fall the association has gained approval to teach a nonsectarian Biblical Literature course at Canyon High School.

The pastoral association will have the responsibility of selecting a teacher with school board approval and will provide a salary for the selected teacher.

Participating at the Sunrise services today were Rev. Terry White of the First Christian Church with the message. Others participating with liturgy were Norman Cobb of the United Methodist Church, Baldwin Stribling of First Presbyterian; David Melber of St. Paul Lutheran, Darold Baldwin, assistant at First Baptist, Jimmy Rogers of Southside Baptist, and Bill Foil of the First Baptist.

County Faces Light Agenda

A brief meeting is scheduled at 1 p.m. Monday for Randall County commissioners.

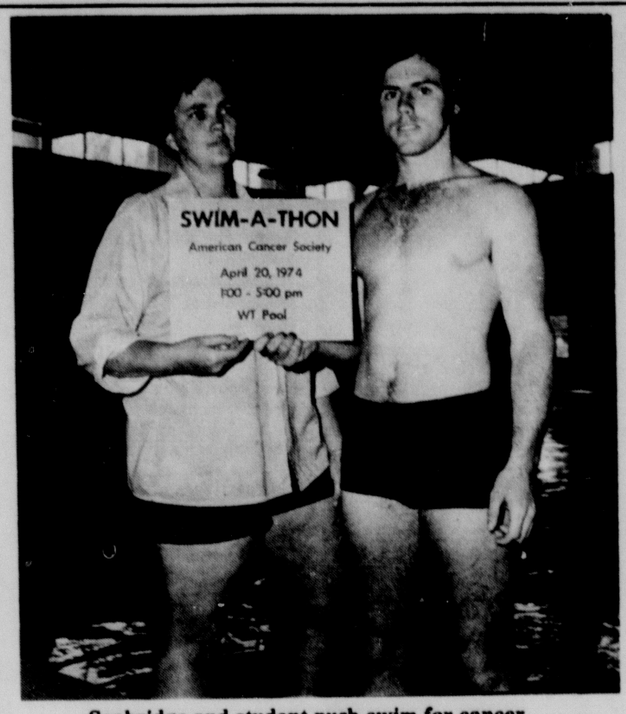
Only three items of new business are on the Monday agenda.

Mrs. Audrey Bruse, tax assessor-collector, is expected to appear before commissioners seeking purchase of equipment and replacement of tax office personnel.

Commissioners are scheduled to continue discussions of a plat recently accepted from McCormick Estates.

Justice of the Peace W. W. Hancock is to talk with commissioners about janitorial help for the South Amarillo courthouse annex.

No item is scheduled on the agenda for discussion of a possible revaluation of county property for taxing purposes. Commissioners launched only preliminary discussions of the issue at their last meeting.



Seabridge and student push swim for cancer.

Absentee Vote Underway Mon.

Absentee balloting for the May primary elections begins Monday in the county clerk's office in Canyon and South Amarillo.

The primary elections are set for May 4.

Cancer Swim Set April 20

The annual Randall County Cancer Society Swim-A-Thon will be held April 20 at the West Texas State University activities center.

Local school students and college students are eligible to participate in the swim-a-thon, which will have proceeds go to the cancer society.

Col. John Childs, director of the society fund drive here, said participants in the swim should contact Miss Audre Seabridge at 655-7498 or pick up sponsor sheets at the activities center office or at the office of local school principals.

Participants are to contract with local merchants and citizens to swim laps with the sponsors paying 10 cents for each lap they swim.

This year, Childs said, the sponsors will not be expected to pay more than $10 for the laps the participants swim.

Those who wish to participate should show up between 1 and 5 p.m. April 20 to swim their laps, Miss Seabridge said.

Following the swim, the participants must return to their sponsors to collect the money pledged. Deadline for turning in the money will be April 29 at the First National Bank or room 110 of the activities center.

Miss Purcell-Comer Pledge Marriage Vows

Double ring marriage vows for Miss Schelia Ann Purcell and Lacye Donnell Comer were confirmed at the Calvary Baptist Church of Canyon at 4:30 Saturday afternoon with Rev. Derrell Lewis, pastor of the church, officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Helen Purcell of 4011 Rio Grande in Amarillo and is a 1971 graduate of Palo Duro High School in Amarillo. She is presently employed with Levi Strauss in Amarillo.

Parents of the bridegroom are Mr. and Mrs. L. R. Comer of 1101 3rd Avenue in Canyon. A former student of Canyon High School, Comer has only recently completed a tour of duty with the United States Army during which he was stationed in Munich, Germany.

Wedding guests were received at the guest register by the bride's cousin, Miss Judy Lynn Collins, of Amarillo. Appropriate wedding selections were presented at the organ by Miss Armetha Lindley of Canyon.

The altar was flanked by a white pyramiding candelabra accented with greenery and a lavender bow as the flower girl, Miss Marta Ann Post of Amarillo, carried a basket of rose petals preceding the bridal attendants to the altar. Miss Post was dressed in lavender with white velvet ribbon accents and other bridal attendants were gowned in matching lavender gowns with accents of daisies and wearing brimmed spring hats trimmed with lavender bows. The maid of honor, Miss Nancy Jane White of Amarillo, and bridesmaid, Miss Carol Sue Purcell, sister of the bride, also carried bouquets featuring lavender daisies with white sweetheart roses for highlights.

Attendants for the bridegroom were Larry D. Miles of Amarillo as best man and Terry Comer of Canyon, groomsman. Ushers for the ceremony were Larry Jefferson of Canyon and Mickey Comer of Amarillo. The ringbearer, Tully Latham of Amarillo, carried a rectangular white velvet pillow trimmed with white cotton lace. The bridegroom and attendants were outfitted in white tuxedo jackets with black lapels and carried out the bride's selected wedding colors with lavender shirts.

Given in marriage by her uncle, Doyle L. Collins, the bride wore a formal full length gown of white bridal taffeta overlaid with nylon organza and trimmed in daisy medallions. Her sweeping chapel train was an extension of the full skirt and carried out the organza styling. The gown was complemented with fitted cap sleeves and had a sheer insert for the puffed elbow effect which was caught at the wrist with a matching wide band. The fitted bodice was highlighted with a formal neckline and standing collar.

Her veil of nylon illusion was held to a floral cap accented with daisy medallions and highlighted with pearl and sequin accents. The tiered veiling was accented by the bride's face with rows of the matching daisies. She carried a bouquet of white carnations with lavender tinted leaves and ribbon accents. The bouquet was carried on a white Bible.

Following the ceremony, guests were adjourned to Fellowship Hall of the church for the wedding reception which included a four tiered wedding cake topped with a bridal pair. The table was laid with a white net cloth, bordered in satin, over a lavender underlining. The lemonade punch was chilled with an ice ring decorated with frozen lavender flowers.

Mrs. Paula Latham, Mrs. Nancy Miles and Mrs. JoBeth Fancher, all of Amarillo, presided at the reception.

Following the wedding and reception, the bride changed to a blue double knit dress with V-neck styling and accented with matching blue ruffles at the neck and hemline.

The couple will be at home at 4201-A South Austin in Amarillo.

All Around The House

Spring '74 will see ladylike shoes return to the fashion scene — and platform looks decline in importance, forecasters say.

New shoes feature a single sole and slimmer, higher heels — ranging from 2½ to 3 inches.

Termed "needles" or "shafts," higher heels receive most attention when combined with open-toed pumps and sandal fronts. Toes, whether open or closed, are gracefully rounded.

Rich, classic dress shoes feature halter slings, snappy sandals and slimmer-toed pumps.

Spectators also will enjoy renewed popularity in both sling and pump styling.

This styling reflects the Chanel influence, as do the darker color treatments in toes and heels. Striking color combinations — ivory and deep tone patents, brown with hunter green, and sandpiper beige with white — create fashion excitement for spring.

Metallic accents, such as gold bandings on heels or chains outlining sandal straps, remain popular for dress shoes.

Mid-heels — especially in reptile prints and soft glove leathers — offer a fashionable alternative to the new, high heels. Spectator pumps with stack, mid-height heels are an important look for skirts or pants. Some spring lines feature stacked heels and toes accented with metallics for day wear.

In these, gold, silver, gunmetal and bronze offset white or ivory. Geared to the younger set, these fashions flaunt a broader toe.

Espadrilles, on the other hand, reflect current interest in handcrafts.

For example, vamps of woven leather, bright embossing or needlepoint join with wedge heels. Slight platform soles, outlined with woven rope, provide an effective contrast for bright pastel leathers.

This year's jeans shoe is an espadrille in denim or bandana fabric with rope trim and crepe sole.

Overall, spring finds shoes softer, slimmer and more graceful. Comfort and individual tastes are stressed along with fashion for today's woman.

Installed, from left, were Jewell Crawford, president; Florine Carruth, vice president; Ruth Allen, secretary; Mae Johnson, treasurer; Mrs. Rae Walters, reporter; Jettrew Winters, parliamentarian; Roxie Hammons, historian; and Reba Guess was installing officer. Newlywed Couple Plan Home Here

Mr. and Mrs. Philip Thomas Stevens have established their home at 1509-A 9th Avenue in Canyon following their double ring marriage vows which were confirmed at 7:30 p.m. Saturday evening at St. Paul Lutheran Church in Canyon.

Rev. David Melber officiated as Miss Pamela Kay Tucek, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Tucek of Rt. 2, Canyon, pledged her troth with Stevens, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Stevens, 513 11th Avenue in Canyon.

The double ring rites were read at the altar which was flanked by baskets of mixed colors of spring flowers. Easter lilies were on each side of the altar railing and single candles were along the aisle. A unity candle was at the altar and was lit by the bride and groom as the concluding act in the ceremony.

Miss Lauren Fulton was soloist and Mrs. W. H. Holmes was the organist. Selections including We've Only Just Begun and the traditional Wedding Prayer were among musical presentations for the ceremony.

Given in marriage by her parents, the bride wore an empire waisted gown of white satin with lace and seed pearls on the lace bodice. The short chapel train was complemented with lace down the back and framing the train. Sleeves were tapered with lace accenting the wrist. She wore a chapel veil of tulle edged in lace which was attached to a crown of seed pearls. Complimenting her parents, the bride wore her mother's engagement ring on her right hand for the formal ceremony.

Bridal attendants included in the ceremony were Vickie Tucek, niece of the bride from Boys Ranch; Roxie Knox, cousin of the bride from Canyon; Rhonda Tucek, the bride's sister from Canyon; and Christina Hill, niece of the bridegroom was flower girl.

Floor-length dresses with raised necklines of flocked nylon organza over pink were worn by the bridal attendants. The dresses featured sheer sleeves. The maid of honor's dress was lined in pink and the bridesmaids wore darker shades of pink. The empire waisted dress worn by the flower girl was in the matching shade of dark pink. Each attendant wore a different shade of spring colored ribbon in the hair with streamers flowing to the floor and each carried a white basket of mixed spring flowers.

David Williams of Canyon was best man. Groomsmen were the bridegroom's brothers, Wilkes Stevens and Wallace Stevens, both of Canyon. Ushers for the occasion were Ronnie Stevens, brother of the bridegroom, and Clinton Tucek, the bride's brother.

A reception was held at the church with the guests being received by Mrs. Ronnie Stevens, sister-in-law of the bridegroom, at the guest register. Serving at the reception were Miss Tammy Martin, Miss Darline Crow and Mrs. Larry Floyd.

For a wedding trip to Red River, New Mexico, the bride selected as her traveling costume a pink and white polyester crepe dress with white vest trimmed in the matching pink and white crepe.

A former student of Canyon High School, the bride is presently employed with the Mr. Burger in Canyon. The bridegroom is also a former student of CHS and is employed with Jim's Gulf Service Station in the city.

WT Grad Directs One-Acts At Vega

A night of one-act plays will be sponsored by the Vega High School Parent-Teacher Association April 20.

Clayton Cook, director, will be assisted by Mrs. Charles Hall. Mrs. Hall earned her BA in speech and drama from West Texas State University where she was voted best director and best actress during her college drama studies. Mrs. Hall is a sister of Sara Hand, speech instructor at Canyon High School.

Plays for the one-act performance will be "Engenue of the Sahara" and "Oil Wells and Wedding Bells," a farce. Admission will be $1.20 for adults and 75 cents for children.

The director, Cook, has been involved with the Amarillo Little Theatre for ten years during which he has played the leads in "Harvey" and "Never Too Late." He has appeared in numerous other ALT productions including "Send Me No Flowers" which was performed when the inimitable actress, Imogene Coca, was a member of the audience.

In addition to the one-act plays, the Vega High School University Interscholastic League production of Charles Stevens "Tangled Webb" will be presented under the direction of Dee Williams and Jan Ward, assistant. The UIL presentation earned a best actor and two all-star cast awards in UIL competition.
